First Responder Group established in Hudson Bay

Kelsey Trail Health Region Emergency Medical Services (KTHR EMS) is proud to announce the newest volunteer First Responder group in the region. Eight participants from Hudson Bay recently completed the nationally accredited Red Cross First Responder program offered by Kelsey Trail Health Region.

The newly graduated First Responders are: David Fink, Leanne Rogalski, Ryan Gaudry, Cheryl Muise, Geraldine Wasyłowich, Don Clarke, Trevor Wasilow and Randy Carlson. “These volunteers are to be commended,” stated Gail Deighton, First Responder Coordinator, KTHR EMS. “Their dedication to their community and commitment to becoming a volunteer with KTHR Emergency Medical Services is greatly appreciated.”

There are approximately 100 First Responders in various communities within Kelsey Trail Health Region. They play an integral part of Emergency Response Services by providing initial emergency care and assistance to patients prior to ambulance arrival in communities that do not have a local ambulance, or in the event the ambulance service is on another call. First Responders may also be called to assist with mass casualty incidents or remote rescue operations if EMS personnel required additional help.
